

Antique Room Divider, French, Needlepoint, Screen, Prop, Tapestry, Jean Corot

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 18.6141

This is an antique room divider. A French, needlepoint screen or photography prop featuring a tapestry of Jean Corot's Dance of the Nymphs and dating to the late 19th century, circa 1880.

- Classic Victorian period screen with art historical interest
- Displays a desirable aged patina
- Beautifully engineered folding mechanism
- Brass fittings allow it to be folded in all directions to completely flat
- Highly detailed needlepoint depiction of Jean Baptiste Camille Corot's 'Dance of the Nymphs'
- Rich detail in the foliage and female figures
- Marked D'apres Corot to the bottom left corner
- Rear decorated with emerald green fabric - marks consistent with age

This is a highly versatile antique room divider, with an appealing decorative tapestry. Well suited as a privacy screen, or photography prop and graced with art history interest. Delivered ready for the home or studio.
